REGIONAL HISTORY AWARD

The Canadian Historical Association each year presents awards to recognize meritorious recent publications or exceptional contributions by individuals or organizations in regional history. The Regional History Committee believes that these awards should serve to encourage local and regional historians by suggesting appropriate models for their work and drawing attention to work that would be of interest to readers beyond the immediate community. Under current guidelines, the committee recognizes the work of both professional and amateur historians. Awards are usually made for single published volumes. Periodicals may be nominated for specific issues or special anniversaries. Career awards will be for individuals whose work has spanned many years. The committee does not consider the work of organizations such as historical societies, or preservation and conservation work. For 1986 the following awards and citations were announced for Atlantic Canada:

Stanley Alexander Saunders

In a group of influential books and studies published over three decades and including The Economic History of the Maritime Provinces (1939, republished 1984), S.A. Saunders advanced a compelling interpretation of regional economic history. Influenced by the work of Harold Innis, his approach offered a sympathetic but objective assessment of the major themes and difficulties in the region's development. All who work in the field owe a debt to this pioneer and their own work must be measured against his classic statements in the field. Moreover, his achievement as the region's pioneer economic historian was completed without the benefit of an academic post or permanent employment, and in a courageous battle against the blindness that had afflicted him from his youth.

The Island Magazine

Established in 1976, The Island Magazine is devoted to the presentation of the historical and cultural heritage of Prince Edward Island. In ten years the magazine has made a notable contribution to the popularization of local history, and in its pages the Island identity has been reawakened and confirmed. Drawing on work from many fields of study, the magazine has offered sound scholarship and lively writing, all handsomely presented and richly illustrated. The magazine has succeeded in creating a meeting ground for popular and academic history which is worth wide attention and emulation.

Nominations and supporting documentation for the 1987 awards should be sent by 1 November 1986 to: J.K. Hiller, Department of History, Memorial University of Newfoundland, St. John's, Newfoundland A1C 5S7.
