Dedicated to open knowledge

Since 1998, Érudit has supported open digital publishing and research in the arts, humanities and social sciences. By offering affordable digital publishing and dissemination services, and by partnering with libraries and institutions around the world, Érudit contributes to the development of open access and the development of a non-commercial system of scholarly publishing.

The journals disseminated on the erudit.org platform are representative of the wealth of research and creation in Canada and abroad. Anthropology, literary studies, psychology, demography, education... In all, more than 35 disciplines are covered in the collection. The majority of these journals are published by a Canadian scholarly society, university press or faculty. They have been evaluated by our scientific committee and meet strict selection criteria. They are disseminated in open access or with a 12-month moving wall (36-month moving wall for cultural magazines).

Érudit's subscribing or partner libraries benefit from services and tools that facilitate the integration of the collection in their discovery tools (MARC records, KBART title lists) and the statistical analysis of consultations. These services are accessible from the Dashboard on the platform.

Coalition Publica

Coalition Publica is a partnership between Érudit and the Public Knowledge Project (PKP) to advance digital scholarly publishing, open access dissemination and research capacity in the humanities and social sciences in Canada.

Coalition Publica pursues its mission through the development of an open, non-commercial, national infrastructure dedicated to the digital publishing and dissemination of research by combining PKP's Open Journal Systems (OJS) software and Érudit's digital dissemination platform (erudit.org). Coalition Publica is funded by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada and the Canada Foundation for Innovation.

Many of the journals beginning their dissemination on Érudit in 2021 are supported in their activities by Canadian universities and university libraries that host OJS:

AD MACHINA

L'avenir de l'humain au travail

The online journal Ad machina is an open-access, multidisciplinary scholarly publication dedicated to the study of humans at work. It publishes original articles from a variety of fields relevant to the study of human work with an aim to accelerate technical progress and societal transformations.

ALTERNATIVE FRANCOPHONE

Pour une francophonie en mode mineur

Alternative francophone intends to rethink the notion of Francophonie along the following lines: 1) to reconsider French as a minor language instead of a universal or special language, 2) to foster exchange across all Francophone communities, 3) to theorize a Francophone postcolonialism, 4) to explore the diversity in configurations of cultures and identities within the Francophone context, 5) to enact a Francophonie that will oppose and resist all forms of linguistic and cultural totalitarianism.

LES CAHIERS ANNE HÉBERT

The Cahiers Anne Hébert specialized initially in Anne Hébert's writings, but since 2017 it has focused on women's writing in Quebec and Canada, as well as on literary archives. The journal takes a particular interest in the personal libraries and archives of women writers like Louise Dupré and Hélène Monette. It is issued annually in digital format. It accepts and solicits articles by graduate students, university researchers, and CEGEP professors. Each issue contains around ten articles in addition to book reviews. Some issues also include contributions by writers.

LES CAHIERS DU CIÉRA

The Cahiers du CIÉRA were initiated by student-researchers affiliated with the Centre interuniversitaire d'études et de recherches autochtones (CIÉRA), which brings together members from Quebec (Université Laval, Université de Montréal, Université du Québec à Montréal, Université du Québec en Outaouais, and Université du Québec en Abitibi-Témiscamingue), Canada, and elsewhere. Through this biannual journal, the CIÉRA provides the academic community and the general public with an opportunity to learn about the debates held at its annual symposium, to be exposed to contemporary issues, and to discover the creations, ideas, and initiatives of Indigenous people. In this way, the Cahiers du CIÉRA has a clear commitment to promoting Indigenous and student voices.

CAMINANDO

Driven by critical reflection and social commitment, Caminando has been disseminating alternative perspectives on human rights in Latin America since 1980. The articles it publishes provide a critical perspective on the major issues that shape political life in Latin America and on the fight for human rights and for self-determination led by communities in both Latin America and Canada. In doing so, it highlights the parallels between the issues that arise in the South and those in Quebec and Canada. The journal operates from an anti-capitalist, ecological, feminist, and anti-colonialist standpoint.

CYGNE NOIR

Revue d'exploration sémiotique

Cygne noir is a peer-reviewed journal tasked with providing an exploratory and scientific publishing space for research that develops semiotic practices. Founded at the Université du Québec à Montréal (UQAM) in 2012, it seeks to rally the international semiotic community to offer its readership articles from a multiplicity of contexts. Cygne noir was created with an open mind, both in terms of the topics addressed and the disciplines and theoretical frameworks enlisted. We thus invite researchers both young and established to contribute.

THE INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF WHOLE PERSON CARE

While the existential/spiritual domain is known to be an important determinant of quality of life, there has been little emphasis on integration of these issues in healthcare systems. The International Journal of Whole Person Care therefore seeks to integrate the physical aspects of personhood along with the psychological, cultural, social and existential/spiritual ones, and to respond to suffering experienced by the whole person within his or her particular context. The journal showcases the efforts of healthcare professionals and their patients, researchers and others working on these issues from a transdisciplinary perspective around the world with the aim to treat the person holistically with dignity and compassion. It also encompasses the whole person of the practitioner

NOUVELLE REVUE SYNERGIES CANADA

Nouvelle Revue Synergies Canada (NRSC) was created in 2013 at the School of Languages and Literature of the University of Guelph. It continues the work of the journal Synergies Canada (2009-2012) by publishing scholarly studies related to literature, culture, linguistics as well as the learning and teaching of language and culture. NRSC extends the original project by welcoming submissions in English, French, Spanish, Italian, German, and Portuguese. NRSC seeks to meet the needs and expectations of professors and students alike and make it easier to spread research by bringing together the benefits of networked digital technology and the high scholarly standards of printed journals. Each issue is organized around a particular theme and overseen by a researcher associated with the School of Languages and Literature at the University of Guelph or at another university.

PERFORMANCE MATTERS

Performance Matters is a peer-reviewed, open-access electronic journal published bi-annually by Simon Fraser University. Most of our issues are organized around specific topics and themes, though we also consider unsolicited individual submissions.

We are especially interested in work that focuses on the materiality and the consequentiality of performance: the objects that comprise it, the labour that goes into it, the physical sites that give shape to it, as well as the effects it has—what, in short, performance does, and why that is meaningful.

SCIENCE OF NURSING AND HEALTH PRACTICES / SCIENCE INFIRMIÈRE ET PRATIQUES EN SANTÉ

Science of Nursing and Health Practices / Science infirmière et pratiques en santé is an international, bilingual, open-access journal free to readers and authors. Produced by the Quebec Network on Nursing Intervention Research (Réseau de recherche en interventions en sciences infirmières du Québec), SNAHP-SIPS strives to democratize access to research results so that the benefits and outcomes of research concerning health practices may be applied to greater effect. The journal's editorial team invites authors to submit articles in three domains:

- Clinical practice – clinical outcomes (including indicators of care quality and service utilization) concerning the physical, mental and social health of target client groups.
- Service management and organization – optimization of material and human resources dedicated to care; optimization of care and service processes; improvement of patient safety and health conditions.
- Education, training and professional development – learning, teaching and evaluation strategies, models and practices aimed at improving education, training and professional development for health professionals; competency development and competency level achievement.
