

Contributors / Collaborateurs

Volume 13, Number 1, Autumn 1983

URI: https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/acad13_1con01

See table of contents

Publisher(s)

The Department of History of the University of New Brunswick

ISSN

0044-5851 (print)

1712-7432 (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

(1983). Contributors / Collaborateurs. Acadiensis, 13(1), 2–2.

CONTRIBUTORS/COLLABORATEURS

IAN McKAY is a graduate of Dalhousie University and of the Centre for the Study of Social History, University of Warwick. His work has appeared in Labour/Le Travailleur and in Rosemary Ommer and Gerry Panting, eds., Working Men Who Got Wet (Maritime History Group, 1980). His PhD thesis, on the history of coal miners in Cumberland County, Nova Scotia, was completed earlier this year and he now serves on the editorial board of New Maritimes. J.M. BUMSTED teaches history at the University of Manitoba where he is also Dean of Studies at St. John's College. He is a frequent contributor to Acadiensis, and his most recent publications include The Scots in Canada (Canadian Historical Association, 1982) and The People's Clearance: Highland Emigration to British North America, 1770-1815 (Edinburgh University Press/University of Manitoba Press, 1982). SCOTT W. SEE recently completed a PhD thesis at the University of Maine at Orono and now teaches history at Canterbury School, Connecticut. An earlier version of his article was presented at the Atlantic Canada Studies Conference in Saint John in May 1983. CATHERINE A. JOHNSON is a native of Newcastle, New Brunswick. She completed an MA thesis at Dalhousie University in 1980 and now lives and works in Guelph, Ontario.

L.D. McCANN teaches historical geography at Mount Allison University; he recently edited Heartland and Hinterland: A Geography of Canada (Prentice-Hall, 1982) and his current work includes an urban history of Halifax. JAMES OVERTON completed a PhD in geography at the University of Western Ontario and now teaches sociology in St. John's; his work on political economy and culture in Newfoundland has appeared in the Canadian Geographer, Studies in Political Economy, Antipode and Our Generation. Professeur au département d'histoire de l'Université du Québec à Montréal, JEAN-CLAUDE ROBERT est vice-président de l'Institut d'histoire de l'Amérique française; il a publié diverses études en histoire économique et sociale et est co-auteur de l'Histoire du Québec Contemporain: De la Confédération à la Crise (1867-1929) (Boréal Express, 1979). RAMSAY COOK is professor of History and Social Science at York University and is currently president of the Canadian Historical Association; his many works include Canada and the French Canadian Question (MacMillan, 1966), The Maple Leaf Forever (MacMillan, 1971), and, with Craig Brown, Canada, 1896-1921: A Nation Transformed (McClelland and Stewart, 1974). CYRIL BYRNE is a Newfoundlander who teaches in the English Department at Saint Mary's University; he was educated at St. Dunstan's, PEI and at University College, Dublin, as well as at Oxford University and the University of Toronto. R.A.J. McDONALD teaches history at the University of British Columbia; he has published several studies of urban development in the cities of British Columbia and, with Peter Ward, recently coedited British Columbia: Historical Readings (Douglas and McIntyre, 1981). The author of studies of organized labour in 19th century Saint John and of the colonial shipbuilding economy in British North America, RICHARD RICE teaches history at McGill University and is a member of the Montreal Business History Project. CRAIG HERON is a member of the Department of Social Sciences at York University; his work has appeared in the Canadian Historical Review and Labour/Le Travailleur and in The Little Workers (National Film Board of Canada, 1982). RICHARD PRICE teaches history at the University of Maryland and has published several studies in British labour history, including An Imperial War and the British Working Class (University of Toronto Press, 1972) and Masters, Unions, and Men (Cambridge University Press, 1980).