Britannia Mines, British Columbia

A Proterozoic Time Chart for Canada

Review
Cover. The Britannia Mines Museum, adjacent to the Sea-to-Sky Highway, north of Vancouver. The museum is housed in the former concentrator (Mill No. 3) of the Britannia Mine, which operated from 1905 to 1974, and recently underwent a multi-million dollar restoration designed to enhance the visitor’s experience. The concentrator was the third of three mills in the mine’s history, and has been designated a National Historic Site.
