

Journal of the Canadian Historical Association Revue de la Société historique du Canada

Journal of the Canadian Historical Association
Revue de la
Société historique du Canada

Our Contributors/Nos auteurs Nos auteurs

Volume 8, Number 1, 1997

URI: <https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/031127ar>

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.7202/031127ar>

See table of contents

Publisher(s)

The Canadian Historical Association/La Société historique du Canada

ISSN

0847-4478 (print)

1712-6274 (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

(1997). Our Contributors/Nos auteurs. Journal of the Canadian Historical Association / Revue de la Société historique du Canada, 8(1), 295–296.
<https://doi.org/10.7202/031127ar>

All rights reserved © The Canadian Historical Association/La Société historique du Canada, 1998

This document is protected by copyright law. Use of the services of Érudit (including reproduction) is subject to its terms and conditions, which can be viewed online.

<https://apropos.erudit.org/en/users/policy-on-use/>

Érudit

This article is disseminated and preserved by Érudit.

Érudit is a non-profit inter-university consortium of the Université de Montréal, Université Laval, and the Université du Québec à Montréal. Its mission is to promote and disseminate research.

<https://www.erudit.org/en/>

Our Contributors

Nos auteurs

J.R. Miller is Professor of History in the Department of History, University of Saskatchewan. His books include Shingwauk's Vision: A History of Native Residential Schools (1996) and Skyscrapers Hide the Heavens: A History of Indian-White Relations in Canada (1989; revised edition 1991). His articles have appeared in a wide range of publications, among them the Canadian Historical Review, Ontario History, Journal of Canadian Studies, Dalhousie Review, NeWest Review, Prairie Forum, Canadian Journal of Native Education, and Scholarly Publishing.

G rard Bouchard is the Director of the Institut universitaire de recherches sur les populations, based at l'Universit  du Qu bec   Chicoutimi. His recent book, Quelques arpents d'Am rique : Population,  conomie, famille au Saguenay, 1838-1971, won the John A. Macdonald Prize of the Canadian Historical Association in 1997.

Gordon DesBrisay is an Associate Professor of History at the University of Saskatchewan. He specialises in early modern social, urban, and women's history, and is working on a study of seventeenth-century Aberdeen.

Christian Dessureault est professeur   l'Universit  de Montr al, Ses recherches portent sur l'histoire rural et l'histoire sociale du Qu bec pr industriel.

Simon Devereaux received his doctorate in history from the University of Toronto in 1997. He is presently an Izaak Walton Killam Post-doctoral Fellow at the University of British Columbia.

Catherine Gidney is a doctoral candidate in the history department at Queen's University. Her dissertation is on the intersection of religion, morality, and student life at a number of universities in twentieth-century Canada.

Roch Legault est professeur au Coll ge militaire royal du Canada   Kingston. Ses recherches portent sur l'histoire militaire et l'histoire sociale du Canada pr industriel.

Christopher Munn has recently completed a PhD thesis on people and government in nineteenth-century Hong Kong for the University of Toronto, where he teaches Hong Kong and East Asian history.

James Naylor is Associate Professor and Chair of the History Department at Brandon University. He is working on a study of working-class identity and socialism in Canada during the 1930s.

Daniel J. Robinson is a SSHRCC Post-doctoral Fellow at the University of Toronto researching economic and cultural aspects of the Canadian consumer society, circa 1920-1950. His book on the history of consumer surveys and public opinion polling is under contract to University of Toronto Press and will likely appear in Spring 1999.

James Struthers is a professor in the Canadian Studies Program at Trent University. He has written extensively on the history of the Canadian welfare state and is currently examining the social politics of aging in Ontario after World War II.

Jeff A. Webb is currently teaching history for Memorial University of Newfoundland through distance education. He holds a PhD from the University of New Brunswick and has published essays on several aspects of cultural and political history.

Miriam Wright, a graduate of Memorial University of Newfoundland, recently completed a doctoral thesis on fisheries development and the state in Newfoundland. She currently holds a Post-doctoral Fellowship with the Institute of Social and Economic Research at Memorial.