

Journal of the Canadian Historical Association Revue de la Société historique du Canada

Our Contributors/Nos auteurs Nos auteurs

Volume 9, Number 1, 1998

URI: <https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/030503ar>

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.7202/030503ar>

See table of contents

Publisher(s)

The Canadian Historical Association/La Société historique du Canada

ISSN

0847-4478 (print)

1712-6274 (digital)

Explore this journal

Cite this document

(1998). Our Contributors/Nos auteurs. Journal of the Canadian Historical Association / Revue de la Société historique du Canada, 9(1), 301–302.
<https://doi.org/10.7202/030503ar>

All rights reserved © The Canadian Historical Association/La Société historique du Canada, 1998

This document is protected by copyright law. Use of the services of Érudit (including reproduction) is subject to its terms and conditions, which can be viewed online.

<https://apropos.erudit.org/en/users/policy-on-use/>

The logo for Érudit, featuring the word "Érudit" in a stylized red font.

This article is disseminated and preserved by Érudit.

Érudit is a non-profit inter-university consortium of the Université de Montréal, Université Laval, and the Université du Québec à Montréal. Its mission is to promote and disseminate research.

<https://www.erudit.org/en/>

Our Contributors

Nos auteurs

Judith Fingard was a member of the Department of History at Dalhousie University from 1967 until her retirement in 1998. Among her many publications are Jack in Port (1982), The Dark Side of Life in Victorian Halifax (1989), and Winter's Tale: The Seasonal Contours of Pre-industrial Poverty in British North America, 1815-1860 (1996).

Jason Patrick Bennett is a graduate of Simon Fraser University in Canadian history, and is currently a participant in the Living Landscapes Project co-sponsored by Okanagan University College and the Royal British Columbia Museum. Presently, he is working on a comparative history of landscape and the colonial project in the Pacific Northwest.

Albert Churella is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of History at The Ohio State University, and author of From Steam to Diesel: Managerial Customs and Organizational Capabilities in the Twentieth-Century American Locomotive Industry (Princeton, 1998).

Robert Cupido is a doctoral candidate in the history department at Dalhousie University. His dissertation examines the relationship between public commemoration and the formation of political identity in Canada between the wars.

Chris Dummitt is a doctoral candidate in the Department of History at Simon Fraser University. His current research explores the place of violence and risk in men's daily lives in post-WW II Vancouver.

Magda Fahrni is a doctoral candidate in history at York University. Her dissertation examines Montreal families in the wake of the Second World War.

Robin S. Gendron is a PhD Candidate in the Department of History at the University of Calgary. He is currently researching his dissertation examining the evolution of Canadian relations with French-speaking parts of Africa from 1945 to 1968.

Steve Hewitt is writing a history of RCMP security intelligence operations on the campuses of Canadian universities.

Todd McCallum is a doctoral student at Queen's University working on a study of the early years of the Great Depression in Vancouver. His interest in sex scandals continues unabated.

Bruce Muirhead is a professor of history at Lakehead University in Thunder Bay, Ontario. His biography of former Bank of Canada governor Louis Rasminsky has recently been published by University of Toronto Press. At present he is working on a book concerning the roots of globalization.

D.S. Parker is Associate Professor of History at Queen's University. He is author of The Idea of the Middle Class: White-Collar Workers and Peruvian Society, 1900-1950 (Penn State University Press, 1998).

Linda Quiney is a doctoral candidate in the Department of History of the University of Ottawa. Her dissertation examines voluntary nursing service in the Great War and its relation to the developing identities of Canadian women as paid professional workers, particularly nurses.

Ken Sylvester is currently a Post-doctoral Fellow with the Canadian Families Project at the University of Victoria researching the evolution of the family economy on the prairies, circa 1900-1940. He holds a PhD from York University and specializes in the history of rural life, the family economy, French Canada, and the Canadian West.