"abribus" to our extreme winter conditions, b) by raising the numbers of reserved lanes for buses to see a real advantage when using it, while improving the conditions and the continuity of pathways for bikers and pedestrians; c) to help with mixed development in order to reduce the needs in transportation for long distances and further develop narrower streets, better equipped to retain the rain water, etc.

Most projects presented here come from the cultural and institutional sector and unfortunately not a deliberate choice: we would have loved to present a majority of projects coming from private orders or habitations, but the financial imperatives guiding these projects, most of them time, have been their creators in the development of an architecture interested in creation and innovation. It is important to note that the originality of several of these projects is at times contentious. A major point is the influence of the authors, their creators in the development of an architecture interested in creation and innovation. The architectural evolution doesn't stop with the celebration of the 400th year anniversary. Many great projects announced for the years to come create hopes for better and high quality programs, all susceptible to raise our built heritage. The initiative to launch an international contest to prepare for the enlargement of the Musée national des beaux-arts du Québec can only make us happy (in spite of the contentious plans presented at the beginnings and that wanted to demolish parts of the convent of the Dominicans), after its successful integration within the walls of the old jail in the Plains. We can only hope that this contest will be more fruitful than one of the loft des Palais, imagined as a gift from the Mayor Andrée Boucher to Quebec City, in the context of the 400th year anniversary, and stopped since by her successor. The resolutely modern proposition of laureate architects Belanger, Beauchemin and Anne Vallieres was meanwhile diluted, losing its frank dialogue with the remains and with the environment by coming closer to forms which were more historicists. At the core of the historical quarter of the city, the Hôtel-Dieu hopes to find an innovative architecture to complete and renovate its installations, taking also advantage of the project aiming to finish the area framing the côté du Palais and what surrounds it. Above all, let's hope that the new architecture tendencies, taking at once advantage of the mixed usages and of a language well adapted to our time, open to sustainable concepts and principles, will appear all over the city. It would considerably improve the qualities of the downtown area. It would also better develop our suburbs and the many entrances into the city, as we see it happening, on the Boulevard Laurier, today in full development.

A SHORT HISTORY OF LIVING POETRY

BY ANDRÉ MARCEAU

The National Capital of Quebec City has a population of 493,000 people. That makes it the second city in demographic importance after Montreal. It reflects the situation of the vast territory of the province as a whole, with only 7 million people: a low density. One has to mention this "detail" because it is one of the major obstacles to the professional viability of the arts in the province. Let's say that mathematically speaking, this small group of "art fanatics" in an population already small makes it more uncommon. It will become even more the case for the disciplines of the arts which, despite the fact that they are considered major or prestigious (such as poetry), are directly interesting to only a small pocket of the population, while the percentage diminishes further whenever we are dealing with innovating practices among these.

Furthermore, Quebec City which spreads out in multiples small urban nests, hides under its wing a number of the Colony in America) belongs to Unesco's World Heritage. Within the bureaucracy, it has for a long time helped the tendency to limit artistic life to its heritage. Indeed, despite the fact that Quebec City is the National Capital, it finds itself a victim of the fact that its artists often move to Montreal. This scenario is common to most cities remotely far from their only monopolies. Let's admit it: the National Capital belongs to the far regions. During the last thirty years, if there was some attempts to create an association of professional authors, none of them have failed significantly. That said, many writers and poets have made Quebec City their home, live and stay there. Indubitably, it creates some viable arts and durable offsprings. The city has a population of 7 million people (from Montreal to Quebec City. Then, in 1992, the last thirty years in Quebec City, let's start at the beginning, that is, thirty years ago.

Few Important Landmarks

1978 – and the future years — was a landmark moment on the art world for Quebecers precisely because it has seen the births of centers for artists whom, while proposing new ways of functioning, were destined to one or the other in visual arts. Many among these have become noteworthy institutions because of their solidarity and lasting commitment to the arts. That said, we will give importance to the ones that have given a space to living poetry in the city. Evidently, a number of events in poetry have happened, at the same time, presented here for the last thirty years in Quebec City since the seventies. And they have contributed to promote poetry actuelle, in the heart of the National Capital.

Inter, art actuel and Le Lieu, centre en art actuel

The review Inter, art actuel began in 1978, first under the name Intervention (creating at the same time the Editions Intervention). That said, the active artists forming a group around it organised few events. As a result, following the philosophy of the review Inter, art actuel, Le Lieu (a center in art actuel) was born in 1982, offering a program that was radically opposed to the art traditions in Quebec City at the time. For instance, the Marathon d'écritures held for 48 hours in 1983, in the middle of the Mall Place-Fleur-de-Lys, which gathered a great number of writers (most particularly poets) and artists from the region and elsewhere in Quebec City. Then, in 1984, two international
Folie/Culture

Folie/Culture was born in 1984, bringing together two domains not as far apart as it would appear: Mental Health and Culture (or art) — thanks to the initiative of two passionate people: Paul Morin (part of the collective Autopsy, defending people who have spent time in psychiatric hospitals) and Gilles Aréau (from Obscure). This association was consequently devoted to mental health issues and their applications in society and art (or vice-versa) more than to a precise form of art. It has regularly integrated poetry evenings among the variety of discipline presented in its program. At first inclined towards the « festival » type of events until the mid-nineties, Folie/Culture presented events on a bi-annual basis. The association offered a diversified program over the period of a whole year. To this day, Folie/Culture presented about a dozen of poetry evenings in Quebec City, generally following an hybrid form between performance, music and poetics. On the occasion, the association has published nine opus of its Cahier Folie/Culture over the years. The majority of its texts are dedicated to poetry, all of it amalgamated with visual works. Each issue of the Cahier forms a box-object, because this is linked with the most unexpected objects, such as kleenex boxes, hospital scrubs, bags, Bread bags or even First-aid kits.

Réparation de poésie

Founded in 1986 by Jean-Clauude Tremplin, Réparation de poésie was the first association in Quebec to be completely dedicated to poetry and its avatars, such as postal art. It mandate consists of creating and stimulating relations between poetry and the visual arts while implementing postal art in Quebec City. Between the years of its inception and the beginning of 2000, Réparation de poésie was able to present (thanks to Le Lieu's support and other artists groups) a bi-annual festival called Réparation de poésie. This festival included an evening of poetry and an performance, an exhibition of visual poetry, and a workshop on nature poetry (an activity seeking to « confront nature and poetry »). Each of these activities regrouped an important number of participants. Evenings or other types of activities were sometimes organized by the association members. At the same time, for the last 10 years (and realized on a yearly basis) Jean-Claude Gagnon was the director of an artists' book also called Réparation de poésie.

This book published together the visual arts, poetry and postal art of about 40 artists coming from Quebec, Canada and around the world. Réparation de poésie has also presented few exhibits of postal art in one or the other of the many libraries in the city, particularly in the contexts of the Manifest d'Art. Since eight years, if Réparation de poésie has limited its activities to artists books and postal art, it remains an essential vehicle working for the dissemination of both, living poetry and Quebec City.

Avatar

Active since 1993, this non-profit organization dedicated to research, creation and diffusion of audio and electronic arts has been flying with poetry and poetics at one or the other of its events of installation, shows and radio programs (focusing on sound experiments). It also counts few sound or electronic poetry CD's in its growing discography. Even more, Avatar has been usually giving support to other organizations by realizing events or CD's of poetry related to audio and electronic arts. Even if it is not directly related to the poetry world, this organization is viewed as an allied center by contributing to living poetry's visibility.

Poésies of French America

Since 1996, the corporation Poétires de l'Amérique française (Poétois of French America), directed by the poet Guy Cloutier, presents eight concert/recitals during the whole year, yearly. Audiences are performed in the context of Quebec City's Book Fair. Each concert/recital offers readings by institutions and each of them giving a five minutes performance (they welcome about 50 established poets, yearly). This is followed by spontaneous performances where fifteen people give their names, in the context of a poetry festival, but also in living poetry. They are performing. This corporation has the mandate to offer artists "that have a body of work" (to understand here great authors) a place for their voices to be heard directly by a non-academic public. Each concert/recital offers readings (of about five to ten minutes) by the invited poet, for a total of thirty-five minutes. These performances are done in alternance with four pages of music (three segments for three songs and one segment which is instrumental) most generally chosen from the "classical" contemporary or past repertoire. Inspired by literary works from their guests, these shows are consequently far from living poetry. They offer nonetheless the advantage of sharing, by their recitation on the scene, great poetical works.

Le Tremplain d'actualisation de poésie (TAP)

Beginning its activity in 1998 with living poetry evenings presented monthly (known as The Fridays of Poetry) and a « manœuvre-fléau » of poetry (by Le Front de réappropriation locale des poètes), the collective has operated a transdisciplinary unfurling of poetry: living poetry (oral, performed and audio), visual poetry, and evidently literary poetry. As its name indicates, TAP is dedicated to poetry's actualization (actual meaning in this case "which relates to the act"). It is a type of poetry that implicates a performative aspect. This organization has put forward the notions of living poetry and performed poetry in order to designate a type of poetry solely created for oral events (on the scene or on CDs or in situ). The association is proud to be its best advocate in Quebec City.

Each second Friday of the month (ten months per year), the Fridays of Poetry produced evenings dedicated to poetry's actualization together with TAP, the center Jacques-Cartier and the Tam Tam Café. They have reach their 10th anniversary in 2008 (and their 100 edition). Each edition happens in two parts: a short first segment of the show with included five poetry poets, all recognized by institutions and each of them giving a five minutes performance (they welcome about 50 established poets, yearly). This is followed by spontaneous performances where fifteen people give their names, in the context of a poetry festival, but also in living poetry. They are performing. This corporation has the mandate to offer artists "that have a body of work" (to understand here great authors) a place for their voices to be heard directly by a non-academic public. Each concert/recital offers readings (of about five to ten minutes) by the invited poet, for a total of thirty-five minutes. These performances are done in alternance with four pages of music (three segments for three songs and one segment which is instrumental) most generally chosen from the "classical" contemporary or past repertoire. editions of “Urban Sinecure” offering the first poetry evening at the Ilot Fleurie, under the access roads to the highways called: “La poésie se pète les bretelles”. Other evenings took place in the stairs of La Chapelle Street (the access road to walk up or down between the Upper and the Lower City), in parking lots, on the streets, on the steps of the Church Saint-Roch, at the Saint-Roch marina, in the interpretation center of the Saint-Charles river… just to name a few.

Le Front de réappropriation locale des poteaux (FRLP) is a branch of TAP. Between 1998 and 2002, it performed poetic manoeuvres encompassing many aspects: political, urban and informative (communication). It has also been involved in poetic actions and activities realized in Quebec City. The final objective of the manoeuvre was to promote the agents’ rights and local residents to post information about their local activities in their respective areas such as wall surfaces viewed as “urban waste” by the FRLP (telephone posts, barricaded, and panel wood fences). All of these manifestations were for a local reappropriation of them. An article on the birth of the FRLP was published in the review Inter, art actuel (n° 71, p. 60). Among the branch’s activities, we can mention the four editions of Exposition Saint-Roch (happening before the refurbishing of the old commercial area downtown) and two Walks for Poetry (les Pénétrations des poteaux and the Procession des poteaux).

More recently, Le Tremplin d’actualisation de poésie (sdc-à-vie) imported Slam de poésie in Quebec City, by getting together with the Ligue québécoise de Slam (LQS) and also with the help of Slam cap, which was its second year. One game was presented monthly according to the customs and rules of the various leagues in the United States, English Canada and France.

Over ten years, TAP has proposed more than 200 poetry activities to Quebec audiences: evenings, shows, readings, publications for CDs (oral, performed or audio living poetry). It’s now producing its 50th publication.

Rhizome Productions

Founded in 2000 by Marc Doucet (a sound creator) and Simon Dumas (an author) – and that many other creators in literature, media arts and audio arts have since joined – Rhizome Productions is motivated by the desire to give a place to the author in public more completely than traditional venues of presentations of authors and texts (done mostly by conventional poetry recital or with music) (source: Rhizome Productions). During their last six years of experience, the team developed three series of shows, all different in the way they engage. You have respectively Formes, Phénomènes et Syllepse, Formes is the oldest. That said, if productions were seduced at the beginning by "multimedia theater", their shows have moved more and more to use multimedia technologies performatively during the last years. They have brought literary events closer to art actuel. They are real literary events because, on each occasion, the whole show is about an author (or more) and his or her texts said directly (or not). Since 2000, this enterprise realized no less than fifty literary activities – for the most part, in one or the other of the mentioned series – in Quebec City and in other cities of the province (like Montreal) or in few cities of Europe and Mexico.

The Editors...

Only fifteen publishing houses (licensed) are operating in the greater Quebec region. Even if there was few attempts during the last 30 years, only one publishing house is dedicated to poetry was able to survive significantly: Le Loup de Gouttière. Born in 1989, Le Loup de Gouttière always gave priority to poems from the Quebec City region. It was sold in 2008 (after almost 20 years of existence) and became Cornac Editions. For editors in the margins, publishing reviews or small books of the “zine” type, there has been many attempts, but in less numbers were the ones essentially dedicated to poetry. We can mention here the most recent. As far as the reviews are concerned, we have L’atlantage (about six issues) and L’écrit (about 15 issues); for the poetry collections. We have the publishing group Poésie Combattante (with five publications, mostly collective, since 2002) and the ones of Le Tremplin d’actualisation de poésie since 2001 that is Tal (short poetry such as haikus and snerwys, with nine publications) and Les croque-mots (poetry in verse with ten publications) and La Revue des invisibles (poetry books focusing on oral tradition with two publications). Although they are not distributed in the libraries, 200 copies (on average) of these publications are sold each time, yearly. This is a satisfying result if we compare it to sales of official editors which are often lower. That said, in all these cases we are talking about literary poetry more than living poetry. In this respect and considering what would be the closest, examples are rare. We have to remember the yearly publications or more occasional publications of artists books such as Réparation de poésie (with 19 issues) and the Cahiers Folle/Culture (with 9 issues).

On CDs, Intervention, Avatar et Obscur have occasionally released sound poetry, most of the time with publications covering more ground. We will have to wait the arrival of Le Tremplin d’actualisation de poésie with its label Réservé phonique to see the appearance of exclusive CDs of living poetry (spoken, performed, audio and sound) as follows: Mots arrachés du corps: Anthologie de la poésie vivante de Québec (30 poems of the region, 2004); Des Montres dans la gorge. Poésie transmissible radiophoniquement (double CD which includes 30 poems from Quebec City, 2005); Urbine n° 30 (pilot issue of a review still to be born, 2006); Pop-soc-ow (solo CD of living poetry and slam, 2007). A double album is currently in production and will promote thirty poets coming from three different regions in Quebec (Quebec City, Montreal and Gatineau), thanks to the organizations holding living poetry events in their respective regions.

On the radio, since 2001, TAP makes sure that living poetry is heard on a weekly basis (on radio frequency 89.3 of CKRL, in Quebec City) with a program about "poetry transmitted by radio" and produced by the authors of these stations.

To conclude, we can mention that at the Conseil des arts et des lettres du Québec (CALQ), poetry is always solely perceived as a literary discipline. The needs for a scene aesthetic (because of oral, sound and performance elements) are considered mostly the means to promote books. There is still a lot of work to do to make sure living poetry gets the recognition it deserves as a discipline in itself amongst the arts, and to make sure it remains alive in Quebec City and the province. In this regard, Le Tremplin d’actualisation de poésie is a pioneer because it promotes what has called living poetry and performed poetry through its various activities.

* As one of the founding member of Tremplin d’actualisation de Poésie (TAP) and as a driving force of the famous Vendredi de poésie and Slam de poésie in Quebec City, André Marceau developed the idea of living and performed poetry. He is its ultimate advocate. For the last fifteen years, he has practiced poetry in its cross disciplinary fashion. He has been involved in more than 100 performances in the province. He published visual poetry and has participated at many collective events. Since 2001, he creates and produces a program dedicated to "poetry on the radio". He has also participated in round table discussions on poetry and performance at various universities, and produced with other artists, two cd’s of live poetry as well as one solo cd, Pop-soc-ow. He has published in many reviews (such as Estéron, Moebius, Cahiers Folle/Culture) and poetry books or books of haikus, not to mention few essays on today’s poetry, in the review Inter, art actuel.
