

Contributors

Collaborateurs

Volume 12, numéro 2, october 1983

URI : <https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/1018960ar>

DOI : <https://doi.org/10.7202/1018960ar>

Aller au sommaire du numéro

Éditeur(s)

Urban History Review / Revue d'histoire urbaine

ISSN

0703-0428 (imprimé)

1918-5138 (numérique)

Découvrir la revue

Citer ce document

(1983). Contributors. Urban History Review / Revue d'histoire urbaine, 12(2), 101–101. <https://doi.org/10.7202/1018960ar>

Contributors/Collaborateurs

John C. van Nostrand is a practising architect and planner living in Toronto. Before entering private practice he spent four years as an architect/planner with the Ontario Ministry of Housing. He also spent three years in Botswana where he served as project co-ordinator of a major low-income housing project sponsored by the Canadian International Development Agency. His current clients include various municipal, federal and international planning and development agencies. He is a lecturer in the Department of Architecture, University of Toronto, and the author of Old Naledi: The Village Becomes a Town (Toronto: Lorimer, 1982) and of several articles on planning and architecture. [Mr. John C. van Nostrand, 16 Summerhill Gardens, Toronto, Ontario, M4T 1B4].

Morris Mott is a member of both the Department of History and the Faculty of Physical Education, University of Manitoba. He is the author of several articles on Canadian Sport and is currently doing research which will lead to a history of hockey. [Professor Morris Mott, Department of History, St. Paul's College, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, Manitoba, R3T 2M6].

Alan Metcalfe is a professor in the Faculty of Human Kinetics, University of Windsor. Among his many publications, two of the most important are "The Evolution of Organized Physical Recreation in Montreal," in Histoire sociale/Social History (1978) and "Sport in the Mining Communities of the Northeast of England," in Victorian Studies (1982). [Professor Alan Metcalfe, Faculty of Human Kinetics, University of Windsor, Windsor, Ontario, N9B 3P4].

Carl Betke is a senior researcher with Alberta Culture. Several of his previously published articles have treated themes in the histories of the United Farmers of Alberta and of the Mounted Police. His work on prairie urban history, concentrating on Edmonton, includes "The Original City of Edmonton: A Derivative Prairie Urban Community," in Town and City: Aspects of Western Canadian Urban Development, ed. Alan F.J. Artibise (Regina: Canadian Plains Research Center, 1981). [Dr. Carl Betke, Senior Research Historian, Ukrainian Cultural Heritage Village, Historic Sites Service, Old St. Stephen's College, 8820 – 112 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T6G 2P8].

Peter Bailey is a member of the Department of History at the University of Manitoba and author of Leisure and Class in Victorian England (1978) and articles on the popular culture and class consciousness of the period. He is currently researching a full length social history of British music halls as a prototype modern entertainment industry. [Professor Peter Bailey, Department of History, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, Manitoba, R3T 2N2].

Elizabeth Bloomfield is a post-doctoral fellow in the Department of History at the University of Guelph. She has published several articles in such journals as the Urban History Review and the Urban History Yearbook, and is currently studying the factors that led to the industrialization of southern Ontario cities and towns. [Dr. Elizabeth Bloomfield, 16 Caribou Crescent, Guelph, Ontario, N1E 1C9].