Urban History Review/Revue d'histoire urbaine Prize

The editors and members of the editorial advisory board are pleased to announce that the winners of the Urban History Review/Revue d'histoire urbaine Prize for the best article published in Volume XIII are Michael Doucet and John C. Weaver, "Town Fathers and Urban Continuity: The Roots of Community Power and Physical Form in Hamilton, Upper Canada in the 1830s," published in the October 1984 issue. Professor Doucet, a member of the geography department at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, and Professor Weaver, a member of the history department at McMaster University, will receive two year subscriptions to the Review.

Conférences

Places et espaces publics

C'est sous le thème «Aménager l'environnement urbain/Places et espaces publics que se déroulera la saison 1985 des Conférences présentées conjointement par la Direction Environnement d'Hydro-Québec et par la Faculté de l'Aménagement de l'Université de Montréal.

Du 25 septembre au 27 novembre 1985, dix conférenciers de réputation internationale se succéderont sur la scène de la salle Saint-Sulpice de la Bibliothèque nationale, 1700 rue Saint-Denis. L'entrée est libre à ces conférences hebdomadaires organisées avec la collaboration du quotidien Le Devoir et de la station CIEL MF 98,5.

Voici le programme de cet événement d'actualité qui s'adresse aux spécialistes comme à toute personne préoccupée de son environnement urbain : le 25 septembre, Oriol Bohigas de Barcelone, «La reconstruction de Barcelone»; le 2 octobre, Thomas Piper de Boston, «Copley Square : an implementation strategy for urban design»; le 9 octobre, Paul Vermeulen de Bruxelles, «La reconstruction des lieux publics et des quartiers : expériences participatives à Bruxelles et constats européens»; le 16 octobre, Charles B. McClendon de Yale University au Connecticut, «The history of St. Peter's Square : An archeological approach to the Vatican»; le 23 octobre, Laurie Olin de Harvard University à Boston, «A landscape aesthetics of urban design»; le 30 octobre, Antoine Grumbach de Paris, «Traces et tracés»; le 6 novembre, Norman Pressman de Waterloo University en Ontario, «Apprivoiser l'hiver pour apprivoiser nos villes»; le 13 novembre, Perla Korosec-Serfaty de Strasbourg, «Impact des mesures de protection de sites urbains sur les pratiques de places publiques suédoises et françaises»; le 20 novembre, Carlo Aymonimo de Rome, «Dicci piazze d'Italia ou Dix places italiennes»; le 27 novembre, William H. Whyte de New-York, «The Revenge of the street.»

Autres renseignements utiles

- Un service gratuit de traduction simultanée est offert pour les conférences se déroulant en anglais (traduction de l'anglais au français).
- Les conférences sont appuyées par une projection audiovisuelle dans la majorité des cas. À l'arrivée, un feuillet explicatif est remis à chaque spectateur/spectatrice et un vin est servi gracieusement à la fin de chaque conférence.
- Des personnalités du milieu présenteront chaque conférencier et animeront la période de discussion qui suivra.
- L'horaire complet des conférences est disponible à la Bibliothèque nationale durant les heures d'ouverture, soit du mardi au samedi de 9 h à 17 h. Pour renseignements, vous êtes priés de composer le numéro (514) 873-7982.

REPORTS

Mohammad Qadeer, The Evolving Land Tenure System in Canada (1985), 50 pp., $6.00. Report No. 10.

This report is an inquiry into the emerging land tenurial trends in Canada, particularly in urban settings. It is an exploration of the ways in which property rights are being revised since the late 1960s under public as well as private initiatives. The report also examines the logical implications of such revisions.

Christopher Haugh, Coping Strategies and Street Life: The Ethnography of Winnipeg's Skid Row (1985), 120 pp., $12.00. Report No. 11.

Recent studies of western Skid Row regions have identified cultural traditions and activities which are both adaptive in and specific to Skid Row residents. This paper provides an overview of life on Skid Row in Winnipeg. In presenting the social and material world of Skid Row, the author illustrates that some of the most prevalent, and seemingly aberrant, behaviours of Skid Row residents can be clearly understood in the context of adaptation to a perilous and unusual ecosystem. This is a fascinating report and should be of interest to urban policy makers in all levels of government, social workers, and anyone wanting insight into life on Skid Row.

Planning Perspectives
An international journal of history, planning and the environment

In January 1986, E & F N Spon will begin publishing this new journal: initially in three parts. It is intended to reflect the interests of those concerned with the planning of the physical environment. The context will be broad and the emphasis historical, seeking to provide explanations for the origins and consequences of planning ideas, methods and activities in the framework of social, economic, political and technological change. Since the historical study of planning leads, inevitably, to consideration of our present environment and the shape it will take in the future, Planning Perspectives will also cover contemporary issues, predictions and theoretical topics. The scope will be international, the intention being to develop worldwide comparative perspectives through which the development and transfer of planning concepts and practice can be traced.

Planning Perspectives will be a high quality, refereed journal. It is seen as a mainstream contribution to environmental and social science with an historical perspective linking the past, present and future in a fuller understanding of the many, complex factors which shape our world. The readership will include teachers and researchers in urban studies, planning, geography, history and the social sciences. Those professionally involved in planning will find the Journal's emphasis on the results of earlier decisions and policies particularly relevant.

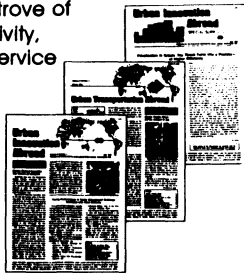

The Editors will be supported by a board of regional Associate Editors, two Review Editors and a board of international Advisory Editors.
