Dedicated to open knowledge

Since 1998, Érudit has supported open digital publishing and research in the arts, humanities and social sciences. By offering affordable digital publishing and dissemination services, and by partnering with libraries and institutions around the world, Érudit contributes to the development of open access and the development of a non-commercial system of scholarly publishing.

The journals disseminated on the erudit.org platform are representative of the wealth of research and creation in Canada and abroad. Anthropology, literary studies, psychology, demography, education... In all, more than 35 disciplines are covered in the collection. The majority of these journals are published by a Canadian scholarly society, university press or faculty. They have been evaluated by our scientific committee and meet strict selection criteria. They are disseminated in open access or with a 12-month moving wall (36-month moving wall for cultural magazines).

Érudit's subscribing or partner libraries benefit from services and tools that facilitate the integration of the collection in their discovery tools (MARC records, KBART title lists) and the statistical analysis of consultations. These services are accessible from the Dashboard on the platform.

Coalition Publica

Coalition Publica is a partnership between Érudit and the Public Knowledge Project (PKP) to advance digital scholarly publishing, open access dissemination and research capacity in the humanities and social sciences in Canada.

Coalition Publica pursues its mission through the development of an open, non-commercial, national infrastructure dedicated to the digital publishing and dissemination of research by combining PKP's Open Journal Systems (OJS) software and Érudit's digital dissemination platform (erudit.org). Coalition Publica is funded by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada and the Canada Foundation for Innovation.

Most of the journals beginning their dissemination on Érudit in 2022 are supported in their activities by Canadian universities and university libraries that host OJS:

AESTIMATIO

Sources and Studies in the History of Science

Aestimatio focuses on the history of science from antiquity to the early modern period in the cultures of Eurasia and Africa, recognizing that the spread of the traditions of knowledge and of ideas is a unifying characteristic of the chronological and geo-cultural scope of premodern science in the Old World.

INTERVENTION

Intervention is published by the Ordre des travailleurs sociaux et des thérapeutes conjugaux et familiaux du Québec (OTSTCFQ). Intervention responds to the OTSTCFQ's mandate to promote the maintenance and development of the skills of social workers and marital and family therapists. The journal also aims to promote the advancement of knowledge in the fields of social work and marital and family therapy. To this end, it disseminates the most recent research findings based on current thought specific to these two fields of practice. The articles published address substantive questions, document important current issues, and highlight and analyze new modes of practice and innovative experiences. Finally, Intervention aims to ensure greater visibility for social workers and marriage and family therapists, both in Quebec and abroad.

JOURNAL OF CHILDHOOD STUDIES

Journal of Childhood Studies aims to provide researchers and practitioners with a transdisciplinary space to cultivate experimental, creative, and alternative approaches to, and conceptualizations of, childhood. Journal of Childhood Studies offers a forum for practitioners and scholars to engage in serious discussion related to the politics, tensions, and possibilities for childhood in increasingly complex and connected worlds. Articles published in the journal adopt a critical and post-developmental edge, as authors shift the conversation toward timely, innovative, and contradictory engagements with childhood that complexify traditional neoliberal, Euro-Western, or developmental understandings of children's lives.
